JANUS ET CIE

Renewable rattan is now playing a major role at JANUS et Cie. In addition to new pieces handwoven from rattan and raffia, popular outdoor collections have been reinvented for indoor spaces. Among the eco-friendly options: the "Avanda" rattan recamier, available in various finishes including Natural, from the Fibonacci collection. (janusetcie.com)

JAY JEFFERS

The theme of livable luxury defines San Francisco-based designer Jay Jeffers' latest collection for Arteriors. The robust array of furnishings includes a sexy bar cabinet, comfortable sofas, modular tables such as the "Elton" (right), and "the best lighting to make a room glow," Jeffers says. Sharp angles give the "Taylor" lamp its distinctive silhouette. (arteriorshome.com)

PRATESI

Responding to a groundswell of interest in traditional looks, Pratesi sifted through its archives to design a fresh collection of Italian luxury linens. Enduring patterns get an energizing update with beautiful aqua-green hues on shams, including "Neo Moire" jacquard, "Impero" embroidery, and "Vivaio" print. (pratesi.com)

ARJUMAND

Milan-based designer and artist Idarica Gazzoni follows a global muse as she dreams up offerings for Arjumand's World, her collection of wallpapers, fabrics, and accessories that feature motifs informed by her travels. New items in her menagerie include the colorful "Murrina" porcelain plates, hand-painted in Italy. (arjumandsworld.com)

MADELINE WEINRIB

Influenced by Botticelli's legendary painting "Primavera" and Mughal artwork, Madeline Weinrib has created the Botanical collection of colorful, flower-rich cotton carpets. "I was inspired by the patterns of Mughal paintings," the designer says, "while I also loved the beautiful random feel of the flowers in Botticelli's garden." (madelineweinrib.com)
