Force of Nature

A CONNECTION WITH NATURE has a proven and profound effect on our well-being, creativity, and productivity. Today's evolving workplace incorporates natural elements—materials, lighting, forms and flora—to complement this innate human-nature relationship and create an overall engaging experience.

The Spheres, Amazon's new Seattle headquarters designed by local architecture firm NBBJ, is centered around one simple element that's missing from the modern office space—nature. The extraordinary result of more than six years of planning, this remarkably versatile indoor/outdoor space is characterized by its living green walls, allowing The Spheres to become home to more than 40,000 plants from the cloud forest regions of over 30 countries. Inviting workspaces, open courtyards, and various levels of plant life give Amazon employees the invaluable opportunity to work within a rainforest's natural layers and canopies.

“It is an exciting time in the history of design, a time in which new science is informing our choices to improve people’s experience of the built environment.”

— Bill Browning, Founding Partner, Terrapin Bright Green

Designer Profile: Rios Clementi Hale

THE AWARD-WINNING RIO COLLECTION has been a landmark for JANUS et Cie, and the collaboration with renowned architect and design firm Rios Clementi Hale Studios seamlessly merges the practical with the playful.

Partners Mark Rios, Julie Smith-Clementi, Frank Clementi, Bob Hale and Mark Motonaga are formally trained in both architecture and landscape architecture and design with a singular vision: to imagine and create complete environments. The firm's client list is as diverse as the services it provides, and includes entertainment studios, commercial developers, cultural and educational institutions, city agencies, retail and restaurant establishments, and private individuals. This group's fascination with the interrelationships among design disciplines is embodied in projects such as Tysons Corner Center, Virginia, where visitors are greeted by bright-colored Rio Benches—originally designed exclusively for this installation and later to become a celebrated JANUS et Cie collection.

“Together we work beyond boundaries to reveal,
explore, and invent designs
that amplify experiences.”

— Rios Clementi Hale Studios
