pomp and circumstance

Interior Design editor in chief Cindy Allen flew to San Francisco to claim her second honorary doctorate, this time from the Academy of Art University. (The New York School of Interior Design was the first.) And she gave as good as she got, gathering students for individual portfolio reviews, then inspiring them with a heartfelt go-get-'em graduation speech. The big surprise came from faculty member Agustin Sanders, who showed his appreciation by transforming the window display at the school's gallery into a three-dimensional improvisation on Interior Design's April cover.
