fine lines

For the Masters Aluminum Series, Janus et Cie founder Janice Feldman teamed up with designer Orlando Diaz-Azcuy to create a line of striking, meticulously made outdoor furniture with a laid-back sense of grace. Both contributed their own pieces to the collection and cite inspiration as diverse as the work of Wiener Werkstätte architect Josef Hoffmann and family heirloom jewelry. Quadrat chairs and Artemis table; from $2,466, janusetcie.com.

FALLING IN LOVE

Suzanne Kasler's newest collection of fabric for Lee Jofa builds on the pretty, polished aesthetic for which she is known, with graphic fretwork weaves, swirling and romantic paisleys, and evocative damasks. The colorways include a dusky pastel range that shimmers with sophistication. To the trade, leejofa.com.

a fitting showcase

David Yurman returns to his early roots with a new boutique in New York's SoHo, where he cut his teeth as a sculptor during the district's heyday. The sleek space features richly grained woods, darkly glinting metal finishes, and two of Yurman's welded-bronze sculptures. 114 Prince St., davidyurman.com.

BLOCK PARTY

With a subtly shaded color combination, this wristlet wallet and card-carrying case adopt a runway trend in a winning way. The angled, graphic folds of leather actually conceal extra pockets. From $190, smythson.com.

To make the most of the reflected light of the river, Cordsen opened rooms, lightened walls, and restored wood trim.

The porch serves as a welcoming outdoor living room for alfresco entertaining. Wicker seating and 19th-century bar cart, the Wicker Shop; cushions in a Sunbrella fabric; coffee table, Crate & Barrel; lanterns, Scofield Lighting; bowls, Anna Kasabian Porcelain. OPPOSITE: Chairs, Janus et Cie; tablecloth, Les Indiennes; pendant light, English Accents Antiques. For more details, see Sourcebook.
